1 2 3 4 HONORABLE RICHARD A. JONES 5 6 7 8 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE WESTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON 9 AT SEATTLE 10 T-MOBILE USA, INC., a Delaware corporation Case No. C14-1351-RAJ 11 Plaintiff, JOINT REOUEST TO MODIFY 12 v. ORDER SETTING TRIAL DATE AND RELATED DATES 13 HUAWEI DEVICE USA, INC., a Texas corporation; and HUAWEI TECHNOLOGIES 14 CO. LTD, a China corporation, Defendants. 15 16 On January 6, 2015, this Court issued a Minute Order Setting Trial Date and Related 17 Dates. Since that time, the Parties have worked diligently to meet the schedule. Even with that 18 19 effort, the Parties have determined that it is necessary to request the Court to modify the schedule to allow for a modest continuance of the current trial date and interim dates. LCR 16(b)(4) states 20 that the scheduling order may be modified "only for good cause and with the judge's consent." 21 The Parties believe modification of the schedule is appropriate for two principal reasons. 22 23 1. Procedural Complexity. As the Court is aware, this is a substantively complex 24 case. The procedural complexities have also been significant, involving both domestic and foreign entities. For example, Defendants are currently in the process of seeking discovery from 25 26

25 26 a third party located in Finland via the Hague Convention. This is a lengthy and complex process.

2. Time Needed to Complete Fact and Expert Discovery. The Parties have been diligently pursuing discovery. To date, Defendants have produced over 1.2 million pages of documents and Plaintiff has produced approximately 185,000 pages. The Parties' document productions are ongoing. The Parties are aware that LCR 16(b)(4) provides that "mere failure to complete discovery within the time allowed does not constitute good cause for an extension or continuance." However, the discovery in this case has been complicated by several factors. For example, documents subject to discovery include third-party proprietary business information subject to nondisclosure agreements or other contractual confidentiality obligations. The process of giving notice and responding to third-party concerns and requests to review the material subject to discovery has increased significantly the time required for Plaintiff to complete discovery in this matter. In addition, tens of thousands of Defendants' documents are in Chinese. This has added significantly to the time needed both for the Defendants to prepare those documents for production and for the Plaintiff to review. The Parties are making their source code and facilities in Seattle and Beijing available for inspection by their respective experts. The proposed extension provides for expert discovery to be conducted after the close of fact discovery, thereby reducing the risk of experts having to submit supplemental reports based upon newly discovered facts. In short, the Parties believe that the proposed schedule will allow them to position the case better for the Court's consideration of the issues in summary judgment and, if necessary, trial.

In light of the above, the Parties have met and conferred and agreed to seek a modest extension (approximately two months) of the remaining dates on the case schedule:
